The British Hydrological Society (BHS)

The subject of Hydrology embraces a wide range of interests, including scientific, applied and engineering applications. The BHS is an inter-disciplinary organisation which aims to cater for the needs of hydrologists and all those actively interested in the subject.

- BHS is a registered charity run by a national committee and regional committees elected to act solely in the interests of its members.
- BHS holds regular national and regional meetings providing an open forum for the presentation and discussion of important current issues, studies, research, new developments and for the exchange of news and views.
- BHS collaborates closely with all other UK organisations active in related subjects and promotes joint meetings.
- BHS publishes a quarterly newsletter – Circulation – to keep members informed on British hydrological activities. It also hosts a web site and Twitter and LinkedIn accts.
- BHS membership is open to all individuals actively interested in hydrological work or research.
- BHS encourages and supports attendance at national and international meetings through the provision of travel grants.
- BHS supports educational training and continued professional development through grants for higher education and routes to charterhip.

The British Hydrological Society was formed in 1983 in response to a recognised need for a new, broadly based national society. It caters for those interested in parts or all of this inter-disciplinary subject. It currently has over 1000 members and aims to 'promote interest and scholarship in both the scientific and applied aspects of hydrology, and to foster the involvement of its members in international activities'.

The British Hydrological Society is an independent body but is formally associated with the Institution of Civil Engineers and with the Centre for Ecology and Hydrology, in recognition of their special interests in hydrology, so that it can serve better both the applied and scientific interests of its members.

UK national links with the International Association of Hydrological Sciences are maintained by the UK IAHS sub-committee of BHS and through the Royal Society. Links are also maintained with the Hydrological Sciences Section of the European Geophysical Union (EGU) and with other national hydrological societies worldwide. The society has a reciprocal membership with the EGU, with reduced membership subscriptions available to BHS members. Further details are available from The Secretary, BHS, at the address overleaf.

Guidance Notes for completing this application form

1. Please complete the basic information in Section One.
2. Annual Subscriptions are due and payable on January 1 and are tax-deductible in the UK. The subscription year runs from January to December. Members joining after 30th June need pay only half the subscription for the remainder of the year. Full subscriptions from new members received after 30th September will also cover the whole of the following year.
3. On joining, you will receive welcome letters from the BHS President and from the ICE's Subscription Department with your membership number, plus a copy of the BHS quarterly newsletter Circulation.
4. Early career hydrologists in the first three years of full-time employment and bona fide students* are eligible for a reduced Concessionary Membership.
*Students wishing to claim the concessionary membership must complete the appropriate box and gain endorsement from a tutor/supervisor. The current subscription rates are available from the BHS Secretary at the Institution of Civil Engineers.
5. BHS has a policy of reducing administrative costs whenever possible and encourages members to pay annual subscriptions by Direct Debit. The joining fee is waived if new members agree to pay future subscriptions by Direct Debit. New direct debit mandates must be completed and returned with your application to the ICE's Subscription's Department (address on the Direct Debit form) by 31 December for the payment to be collected in January of the following year. If the completed direct debit mandate is returned after 1 January, payment (only for this initial subscription) should be made by debit/credit card, and the Direct Debit details will then be set up for the following year.
6. The BHS maintains data on members, including addresses, qualifications, and optional information requested in Section Two (present position and main interests). This will be used confidentially for normal purposes, including subscription collection, mailing of publications and in the outline planning of conferences and meetings: for further information see: <https://www.ice.org.uk/privacy-policy>.

The Direct Debit Guarantee

This Guarantee is offered by all Banks and Building societies that take part in the Direct Debit Scheme. The efficiency and security of the Scheme is monitored by your own Bank or Building society. If the amount to be paid or the payment dates change, you will be told of this in advance by at least 14 days, or as agreed. If an error is made by the Institution of Civil Engineers or your Bank or Building society, you are guaranteed a full and immediate refund of the amount paid from your branch. You can cancel a Direct Debit at any time by writing to your Bank or Building Society. If you do cancel a Direct Debit, please also send a copy of your letter to the Institution of Civil Engineers.

Banks and Building Societies may not accept Direct Debit instructions for some types of account.
